Control Engineering Announces the 2014 System Integrator Giants Winners

Oak Brook, Ill. — Control Engineering, a CFE Media publication, announces the 2014 System Integrator Giants. The 100 system integrators distinguished by this award will be recognized in the August 2014 issue, and online at www.controleng.com/giants.

Control Engineering presents the top 100 System Integrator Giants for 2014, ranked according to total system integration revenue for the most recently completed fiscal year. The in-depth analysis of these firms reveals what's going on in the industry, and how it has changed over the past few years.

Integrators are vital to industrial automation growth, especially considering the shortage of engineers in manufacturing. Today's integrators face the demand for consistent coordinated global design, project management, and support. Customers require real-time updates, analysis, and adjustments using new big data capabilities. Control Engineering's System Integrator Giants certainly do their part to provide best-of-breed solutions for global industrial automation.

The top 10 System Integrator Giants according to total system integration revenue are:

Rank	Firm	Total System Integration Revenue
1	M+W Automation	$150,000,000
2	Wood Group Mustang	$125,000,000
3	Larsen & Toubro	$92,000,000
4	Maverick Technologies	$66,000,000
5	Prime Controls L.P.	$62,500,000
